DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Applicant Admitted Prior Art (AAPA hereinafter) (fig1) in view of Roessner (5,657,075).

With respect to claim 1, AAPA discloses a defect identifying apparatus for inspecting defects on an LCD substrate 12 (fig 1). The defect identifying apparatus comprises: a microscope, including at least one objective lens 10 (fig 1) and a base.

AAPA does not disclose a defect marker fixed to the base, wherein said defect marker locates a defect. Roessner discloses an apparatus for locating and marking defects on a substrate. The apparatus comprises: an ink marker fixed to an inspection head (column 2, lines 20-42). It would have been obvious to modify AAPA with the ink marker as taught by Roessner in column 2, lines 20-42 to mark the defects. Further, it would have been obvious to fix Roessner's marker to the base as claimed to use the same controller for controlling both inspection head and the marker as taught by Roessner in column 2, lines 35-43.

With respect to claims 2,7, Roessner does not disclose the location of the marking tip. However, it would have been obvious to modify the location of Roessner's marking tip at the location at claimed to mark the defects easier. Since the general conditions of the invention were disclosed by the prior arts, modifying the location of the marking tip for inspecting different shape of substrates involve only routine skill in the art.

With respect to claim 3, Roessner discloses using an ink marker to mark the defects. However, Roessner does not disclose using an ink jet as claimed. The claimed ink jet would have been known in the art. It would have been obvious to modify Roessner with the known ink jet to mark the defects more accurate.

With respect to claim 4, refer to discussion in claim 1 above for the claimed inspection apparatus and refer to claim 3 above for the ink jet.

With respect to claims 5-6, AAPA discloses using a microscope including an objective lens 10 (fig 1) for inspection apparatus.
